Bill Nye on Boxing.

I have just returned from a little two-handed tournament with gloves. I have filled my nose with cotton waste, so that I shall not soak this sketch with gore as I write. I needed a little healthful exercise, and I was looking for something that would be full of vigorous enthusiasm, and at the same time promote the healthful flow of bood to the muscles. This was rather difficult. Being a sociable being (joke) I wanted other people to help me exercise, or go along with me when I exercised. Some men can go away to a desert Isle and have fun with dumb-bells and a horizontal bar, but to me it would seem dull and commonplace after a while, and I would yearn after more humanity. Two of as finally concluded to play billiards, but we were only amateurs, and the owner 'intimated that he would need the table for Fourth of July, so we broke off in the middle of the first game, and I paid for it. Then a younger brother said he had a set of toxing gloves in his room, and although I was taller cause I had often regretted that I had not made my-elf familiar with this art, and also because I

To the punchee, also, it affords a large wad of glad surprise and nose bleed, which cannot be hurtful to those who hanker for the pleasing nervous shock, the spinal jar and the pyrotechnic concussion. This is why I shall continue the exercise after I have practiced with a mule or cow-catcher two or three weeks, and feel a little more confidence in myself.

They are owned, and being developed, by Messrs. D. C. Kling & Co., lately of Leadville, Colorado,: these gentlemen having up to the present writing expended upwards of $29,000 in actual work on the premises. They are distant from the city of Phœ nix, ninety miles by wagon road. and are about seventy five miles north of the line of the Southern Pacific railroad.

They show an immense depos t of copper on the surface, in some places the ledges of ore rising over 125 feet above the level of the surrounding country. Here, within a radius of one and a half miles from the enormous central ledge, are twenty-four claims that are being worked by the company; all of them having shafts or inclines, from ten to forty feet in depth, and showing ore vaius with solid footwallsthe veins themselves being from four to forty feet in width and the ore they bear being very rich in quality.

Some of the claims show a great deal of iron, and one of them is rich in galena.

There is an abundance of wood in the surrounding country, but water has to be hauled a distance of eleven miles from Collin's Wells on the old Enrenberg stage road. Most of the ore dumps are approached by care fully graded wagon roads-the roads in question, being, in fact, far better than those provided by the countr.
